

ACCOLADE

1961

Mosaic by Nancy Thompson

For the possession of attributes respected,
and characteristics admired,
for examples impressed, and
for the manner in which they are lived . . .
we dedicate the 1961 ACCOLADE to Mr. Edward Klavon.

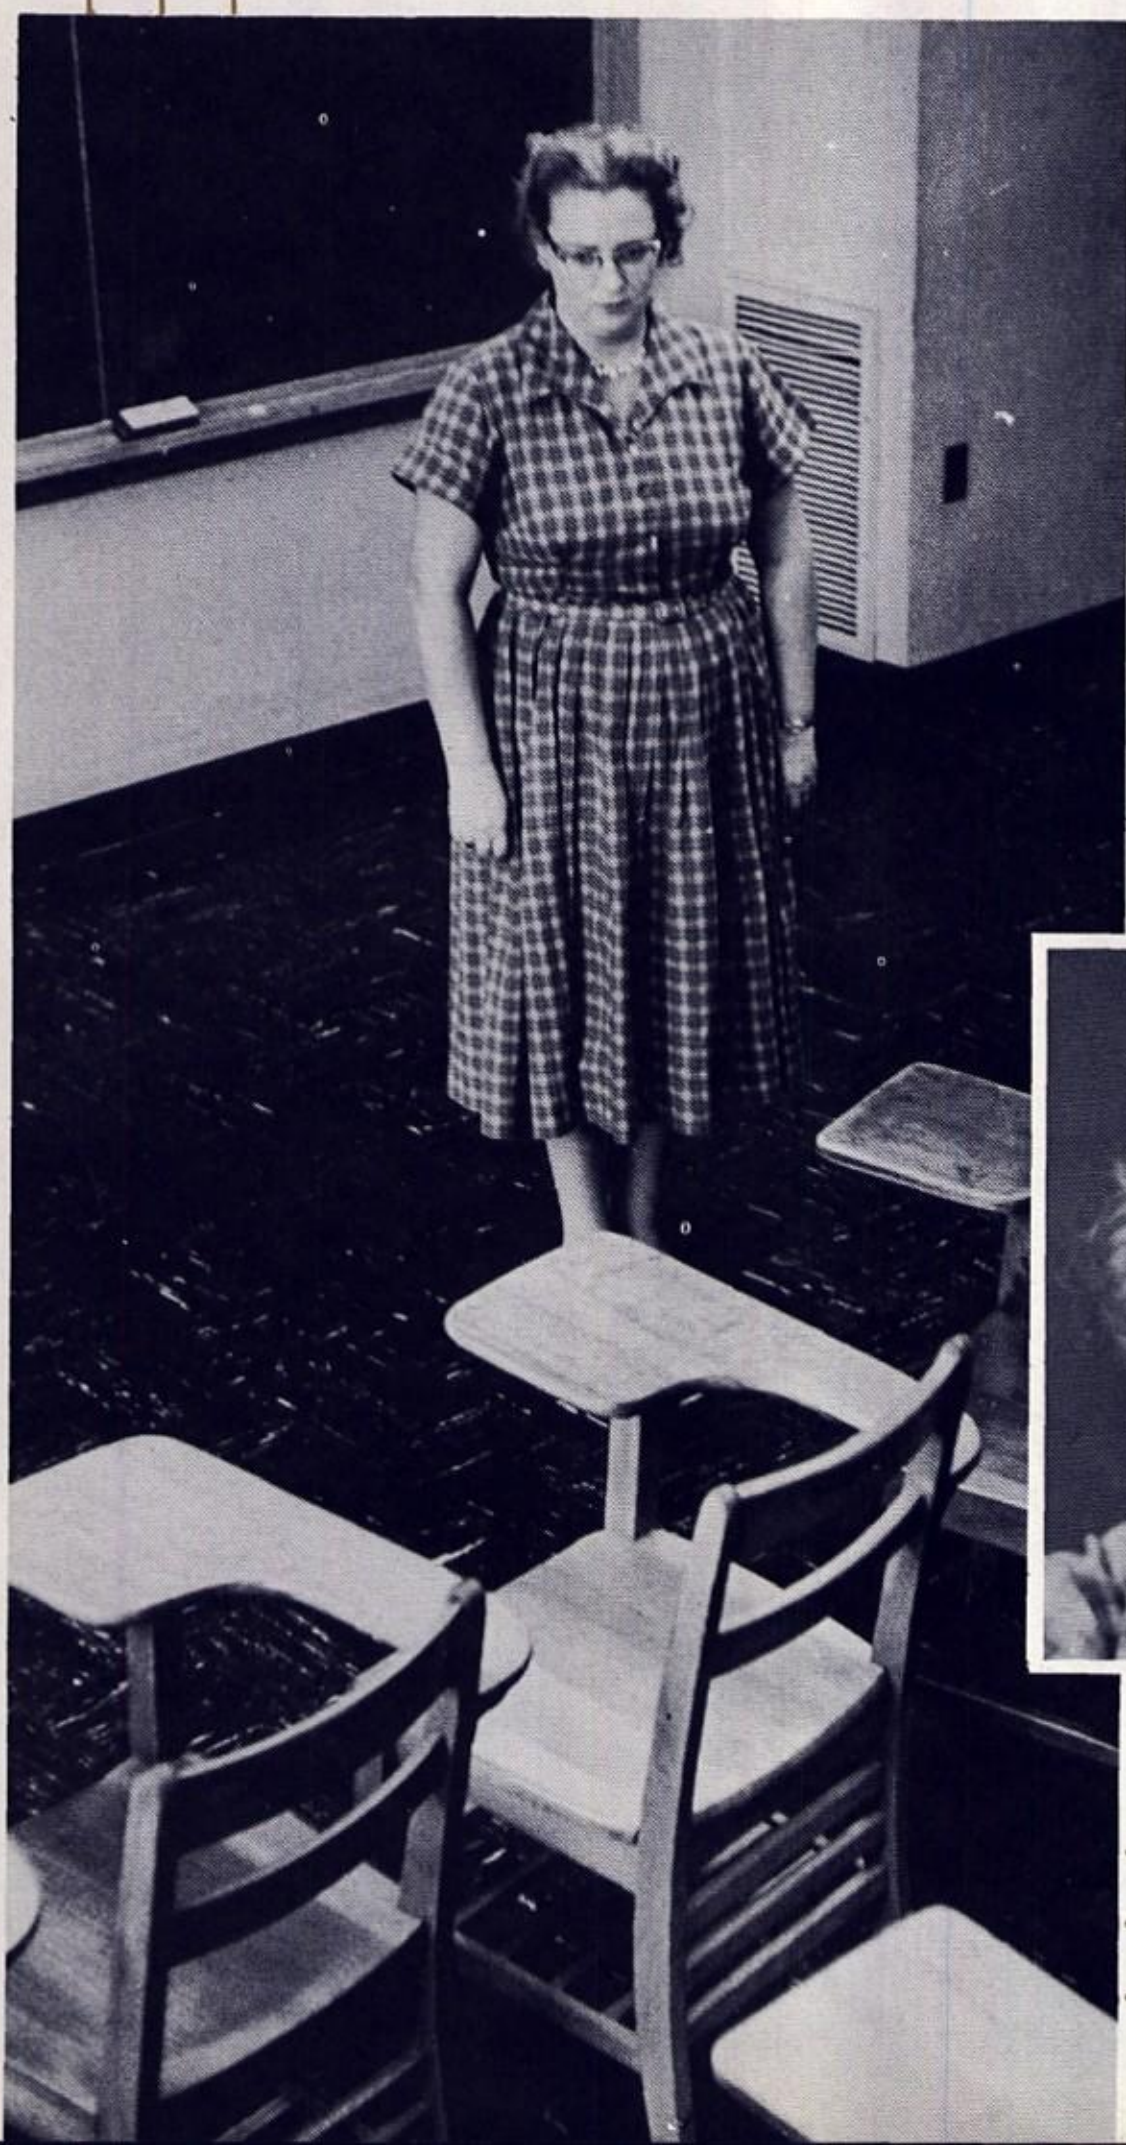

With the help of these tools . . .

We reach, challenge and develop . . .

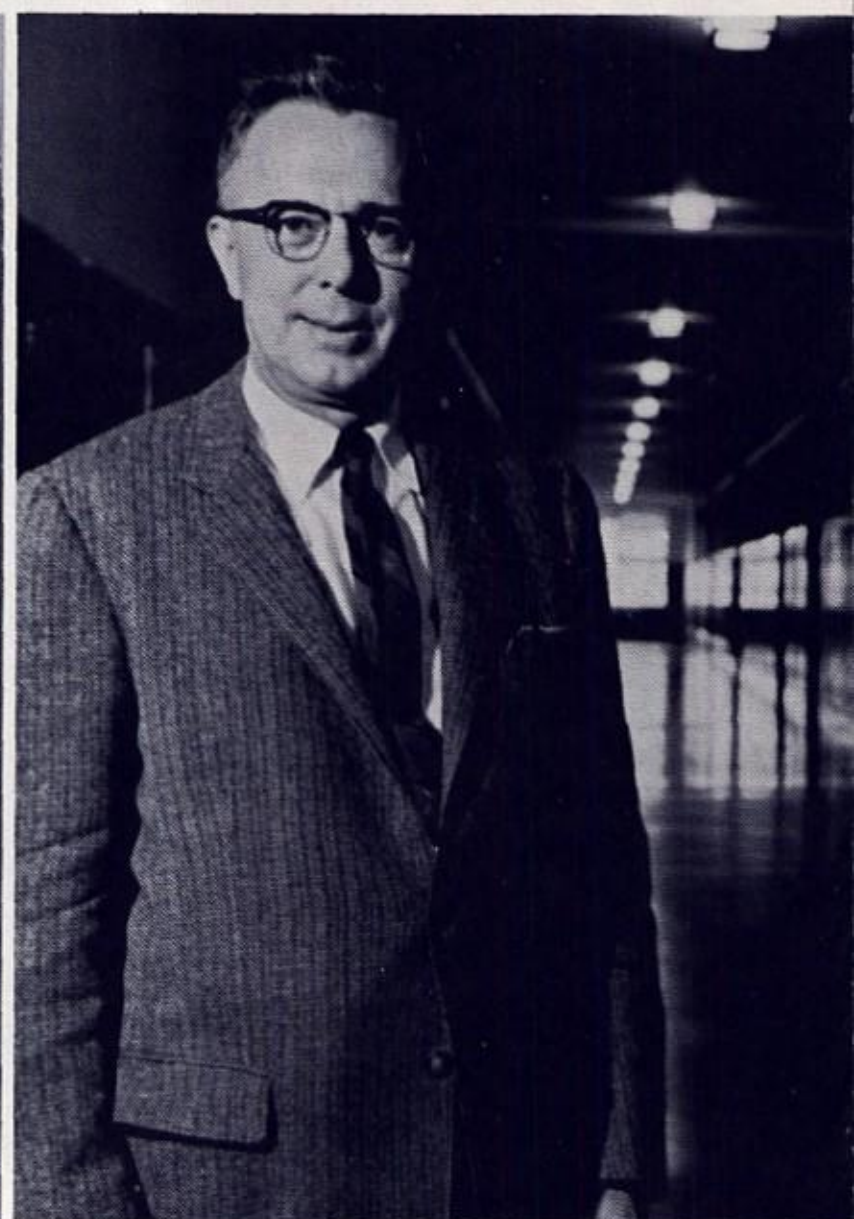

Blueprinting . . .

Our principal, Walton E. Landes, is always interested in improvements for North Penn. He is chairman of the Evaluation Committee for the Middle Atlantic States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. As vice president of the Pennsylvania Suburban Principals' Association, he displays his concern for effective and suitable instruction in the classroom.

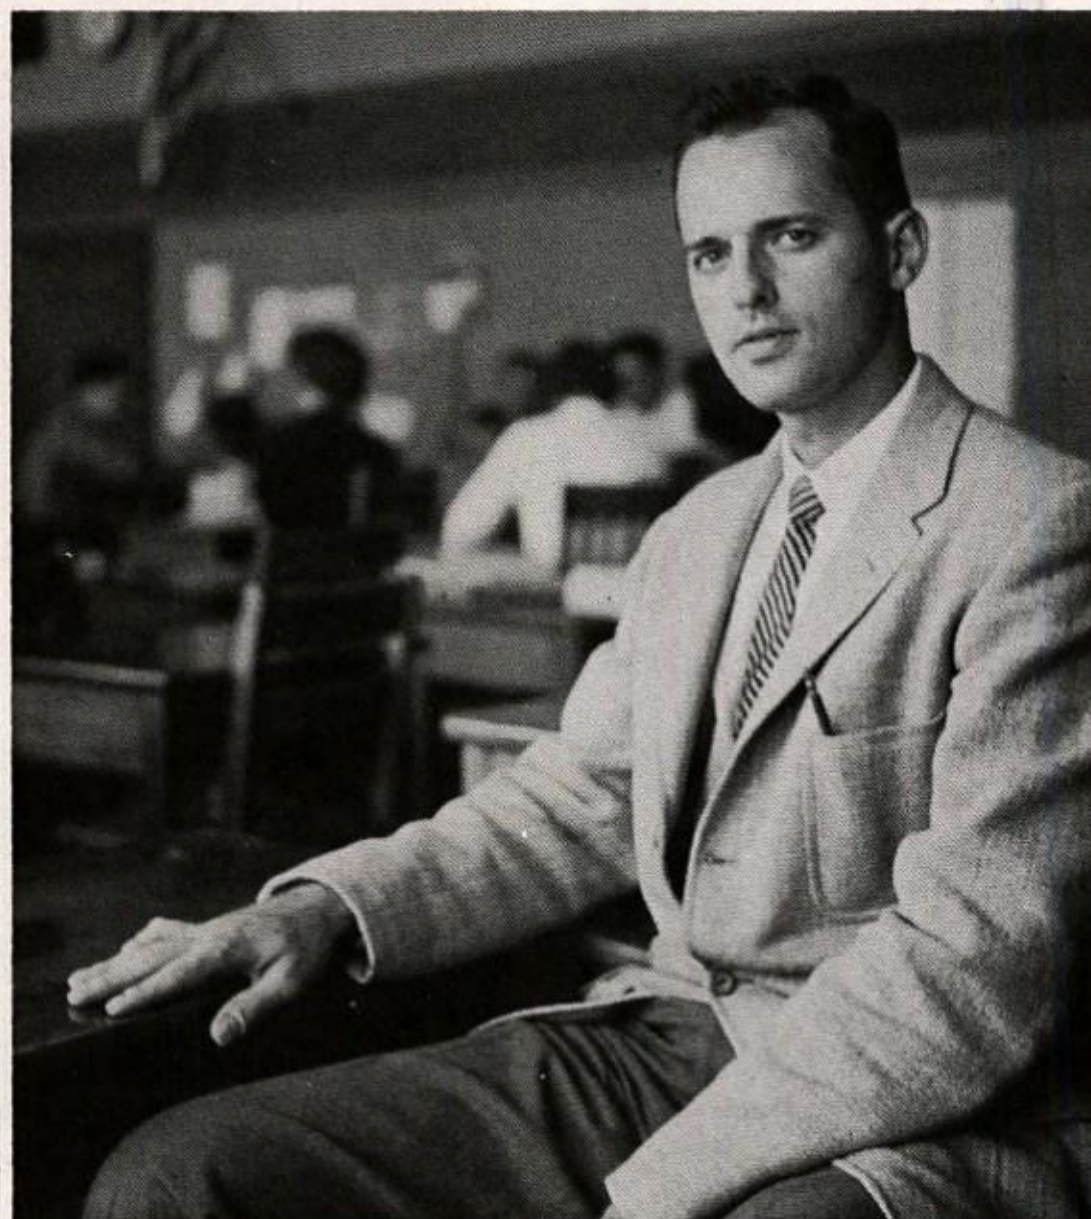

As North Penn grows, so does the responsibility of the assistant principal, Melvin F. Shisler. The scope of his responsibility requires him to perform a variety of duties which enables the school to function smoothly.

A. Kurtz King, D.Ed.
Supervising Principal

Just as the design of a mosaic requires patience and skill so does the development of a fine school. Dr. King, who heads our administration, sets the pattern for this school. As executive officer, he guides policy formation and choices.

Though the job of curriculum co-ordinator may seem obscure to many pupils, Mr. Ruoff is a necessary part of the backbone of our school. In his present capacity, he is concerned particularly with providing a continuity of subjects in grades seven through twelve and minimizing the duplication of subject matter.

The President of the North Penn Jointure Committee presides over one of the monthly meetings.

President William B. Shellenberger, North Wales

Abraham Roth, Upper Gwynedd

Russell Garis, Hatfield Township

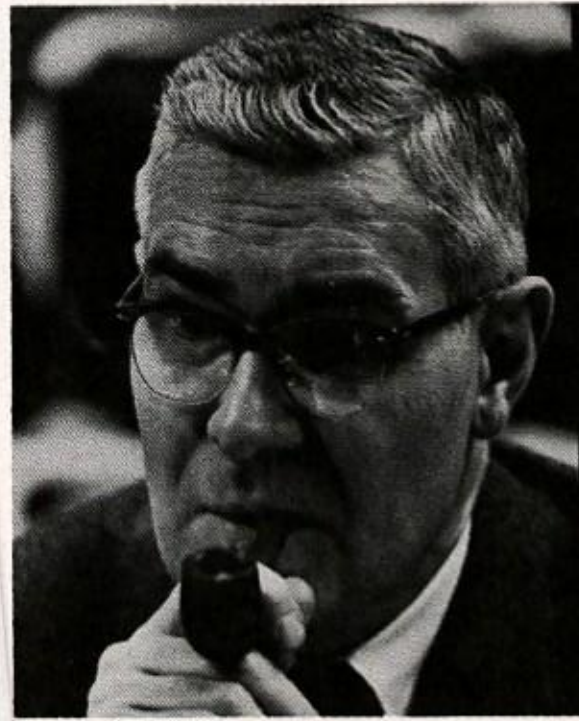

Luther E. Moyer, Secretary

From many, one . . .
the pattern takes shape
through hours of effort . . .
decisions are made;
responsibilities shouldered . . .
results are produced . . .
a diploma of lasting value,
a mosaic splendid in its completion.

Abram Ruth, Line Lexington

Wilford Staley III,
Towamencin Township

Treasurer James W. Williams, III,
Lansdale

Vice President John F. Weierman,
Hatfield Borough

Dr. William Aufder Heyde,
Montgomery Township

In the gym . . . Mr. Crawford, Athletic Director.

In Dr. King's Office . . . Miss Sims and Mrs. Rubin.

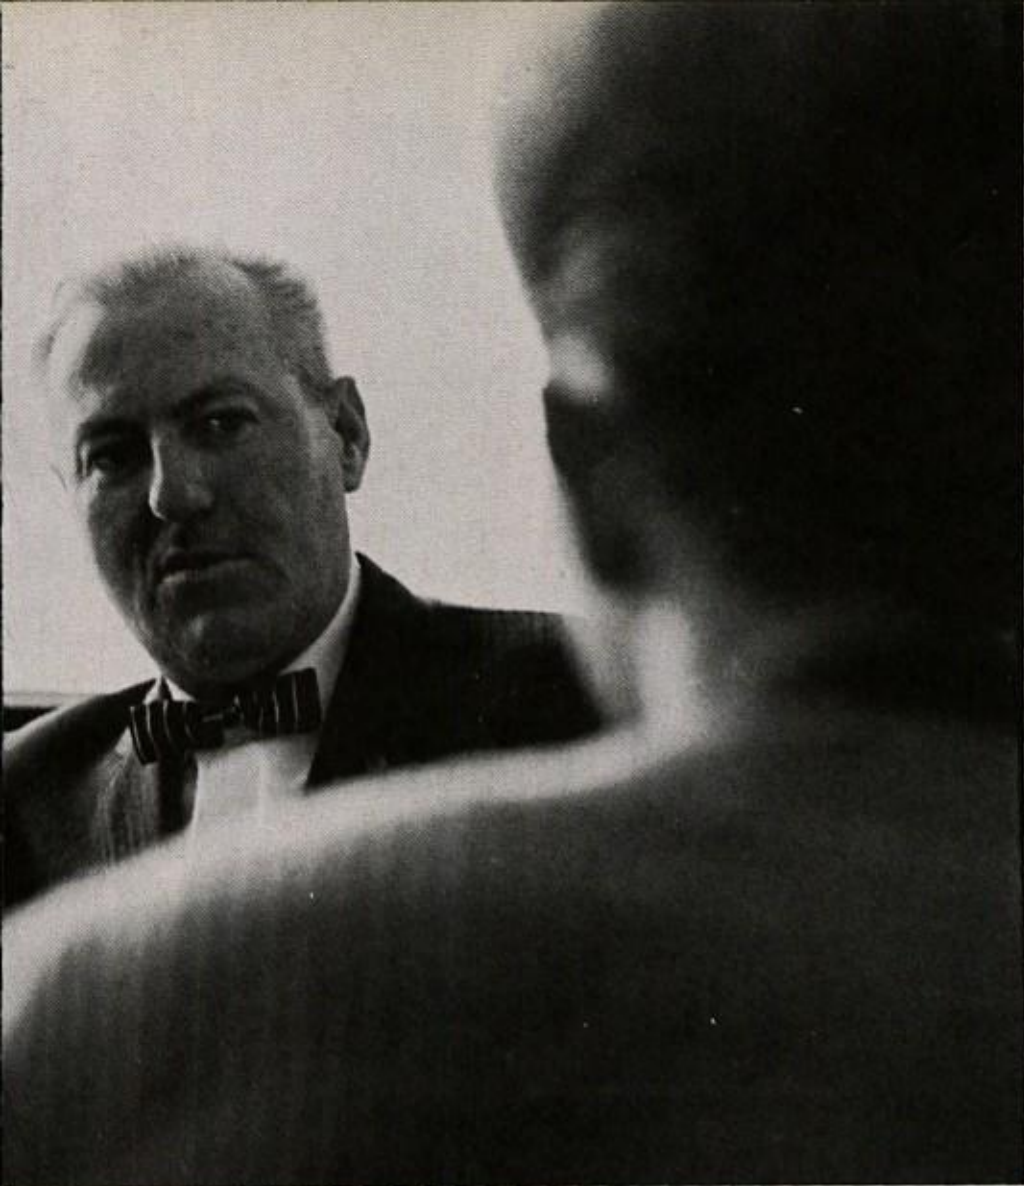

In Room 50 . . . Miss Hirzel, Reading Consultant.

In the Senior High Library . . . Miss Ortt.

In the Health Suite . . . Miss White and Mrs. Farley.

In the Guidance Office . . . Mr. Mullin.

With time and assistance . . .

Running a school requires a great many people with a great variety of skills. With patience and perservance they contribute their time and assistance to the school body. The many duties which these persons perform, we tend to take for granted. Yet, their abilities are freely given and the results of their work are seen throughout the school.

In the Main Office . . . Mrs. Gibson, Miss Welch, and Mrs. Musserman.

In the Attendance Office . . . Mrs. Bennet and Mrs. Seip.

Harmony of parts . . .

After considering depth, color, and shape, the artist strives to achieve harmony of parts.

People, places, and times are the fascinating topics to be discovered and enjoyed in the literary and historical worlds. While reading and learning of the many advances made by pioneering ancestors, we can look ahead to a future filled with even more wonder and excitement.

Patterns of speech . . .

Grammar and vocabulary, vocabulary and grammar—elements of language continually struggling to survive the tests of time and use. Conjugations—past perfect tense, subjunctive mood; transitive, intransitive verbs; rules, rules, rules, and exceptions to prove every one of them. From these, to patterns—to understanding. Without language we can not begin to cross the barrier of misunderstanding, to delve into the thoughts of other cultures and to appreciate the ideas of other men.

Striving for efficiency . . .

Hectic days lie ahead for business students—days filled with taking dictation, typing important statistics, filing reports, establishing procedures, operating a variety of machines, and making out the payroll. These students spend hours mastering theory and practising skills to prepare themselves for these tasks which will daily test their efficiency.

On the whole, pleasant chaos dominated the first few weeks. As if there weren't enough new things to get used to, we had math classes in the Choral Room. There was a masterpiece of a barricade up by Room 52. And it wasn't only the seventh graders—us—who didn't know where they were going that year; nobody knew.

Sections of girls became happy cheerleaders and majorettes, and the rest of the junior high formed myriads of intramural teams. You name the sport, and there was at least one team for it.

Socially, we had the Jr. High Student Council dances—the ones where the girls socialized with the girls, and the boys congregated in the far corners. They lasted on through ninth grade;

but suddenly, we'd picked our Senior High courses and we were real Senior High Students—10th graders, low men on the totem pole, but we were in.

Mr. Klavon was selected as our class advisor; and we elected John Knoll, president; Barbara Marinucci, vice-president; Carol Smith, secretary; and Jane Kneedler, treasurer of the Sophomore Class.

The first big dance of our Senior High years was the "Alice in a Wonderland of Hearts" dance held obviously on Valentine's Day. Sandy Ortman and Bill Zinsmeister were the reigning royalty.

The next Class of '61 sponsored dance was "Cornstalk Capers" and then at last, our "Junior Miss," with Barbara Marinucci wearing the tiara.

But, of course, Senior High isn't composed entirely of dancing. We specialized those Junior High intramural inspired people and formed solid teams capable of stiff league competition, which we got on all sides. It was truly a shock in our senior year when we were developing a championship football team, to have five of our players injured in a serious automobile accident. But it was heartening to watch the reawakening of school spirit and the extra "oomph" of support given by the student body.

Returning to our officers again, we elected Jack Wolford president and John Knoll vice-president in our junior year, with Carol Smith and Jane Kneedler remaining as secretary and treasurer not only that year but in the Senior year too. Jack was re-elected in the Senior year and Ron Hangey became vice-president.

Pajama parties, the Bivouac, and various and sundry other impromptu get-togethers permeated all three years with comical and sometimes down-right ridiculous memories. Remember the time a junior boy cooked a hot dog over a bunsen burner?

It was strange, at first, coming back for our Senior year with no upperclassmen to look up to—but we got used to it. We rather enjoyed it in fact. It became fun taking their place. Before we realized it, we were looking forward to the Senior Ball, the traditional day in New York, and class night. And then, this too was a thing of the past.

We squared our mortarboards, received our diplomas, had our pictures taken several times, and began talking about class reunions.

"Top Ten Percent" . . .

The "top ten" are those seniors who have maintained, since the tenth grade, a scholastic standing which places them in the first tenth of their class. The grades used in determining the top ten per cent were averaged in June, 1960. This February the grades were again averaged and this final listing will appear on the Commencement program.

Youth and its enthusiasm . . .

Youth and its enthusiasm . . .

During this election year the students of North Penn were caught up in the action and fervor of the campaign and its activities. A mock election taught lessons in democracy as students representing both parties presented their side of the story. Our 93% vote could serve as an example to any community. More than ever, the young of the country have the responsibilities of the world. We at North Penn are accepting a part of this responsibility, taking courage from the efforts of two great statesmen and their high ideals.

This year we watched our football team capture an outstanding record, proof of an excellent team. Coach Leonard's Knights took the non-league opener to put our team at the top of the list for Bux-Mont contenders. They continued in this vein through the season. Despite the loss of five regulars, our Knights finished a fine season with a final record of six wins and three losses.

Power and appeal . .

Of the many characteristics of each girl on the hockey team, one was found to be universal—the willingness to work hard. Encouraging each girl to the peak of her ability, Coach Waldo molded out of her eleven starting players, one unit and one driving spirit. Depth was the strength of the 1960 hockey squad. Guided by Captain Pam Brown, enjoyment of the game itself and the thrill of being part of a closely knit team were the rewards for the North Penn hockey squad.

spirit . . .

Truly an enthusiastic group, the 1960 Soccer Team booted its way to ten victories in league competition. This team, led by Dave Rittenhouse and Sandy Haldeman, was composed largely of seniors. These boys proved in the latter half of the season, by their fine play, that they really had the components of a highly successful team.

"The Grappler"*

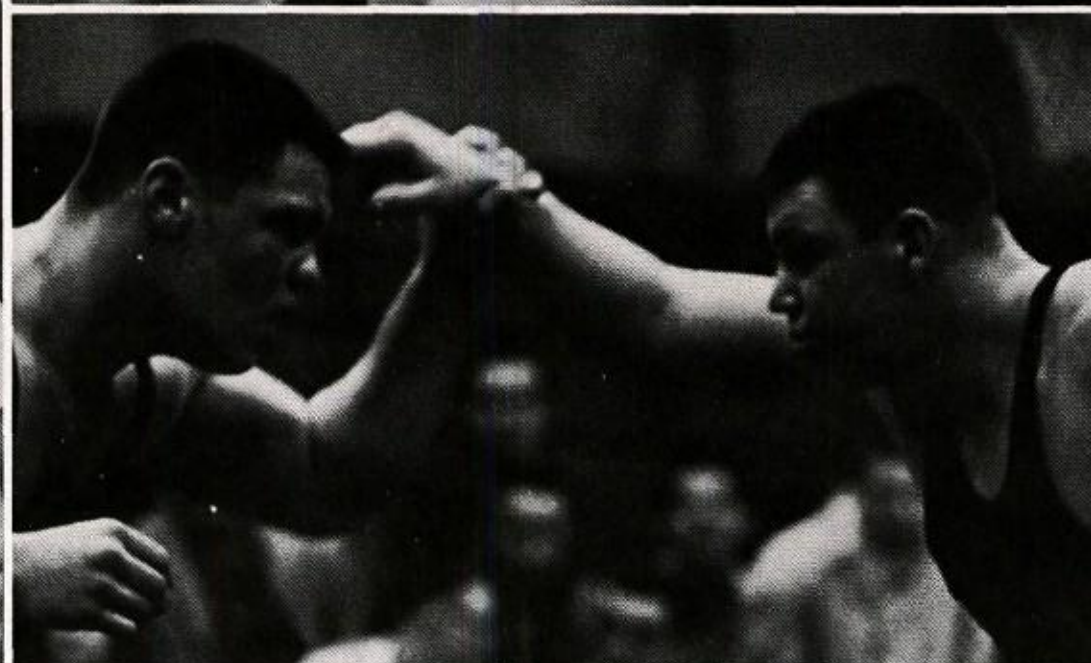

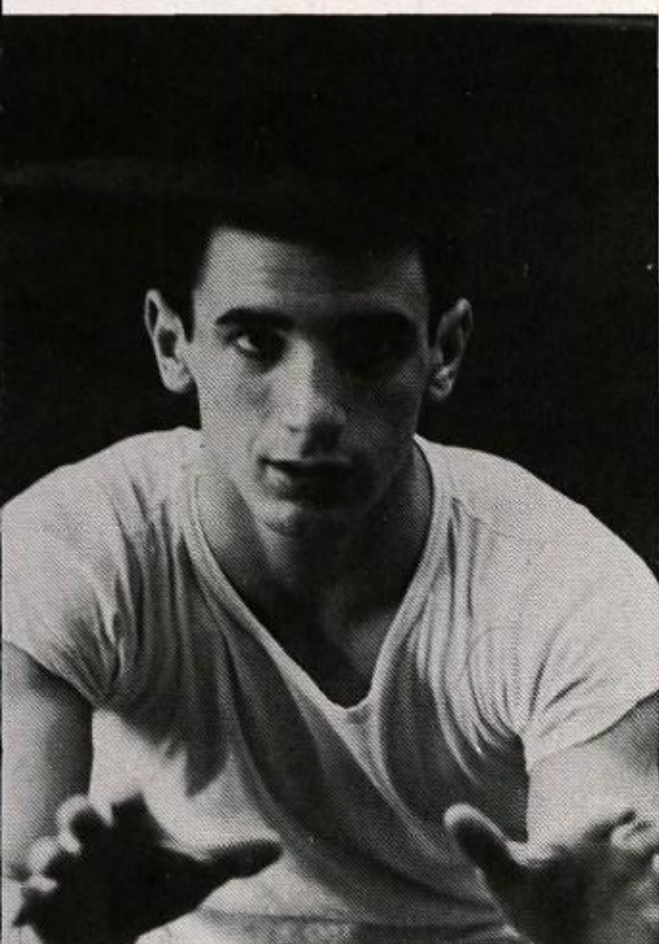

Requiring coordination, discipline, and self-reliance, wrestling is individualistic, placing a personal responsibility on each grappler. With the all important timing, the decisive slap on the mat, the satisfaction of an upraised arm, the hearty welcome following a victory, a champion is made.

Coach Klavon

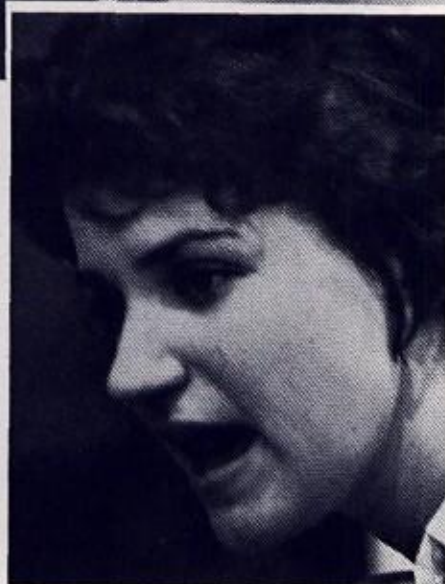

JERRY BONFIGLIO . . . North Penn's Champion . . . through the "Districts" and on to the "State Finals."

Coach

"Practice hard" were the key words that guided the girls' basketball team to a high standing in the league. The rewards of hours of effort were . . . a great understanding of good sportsmanship . . . an increase in physical coordination . . . the satisfaction of playing together . . . a second place position.

High excitement . . .

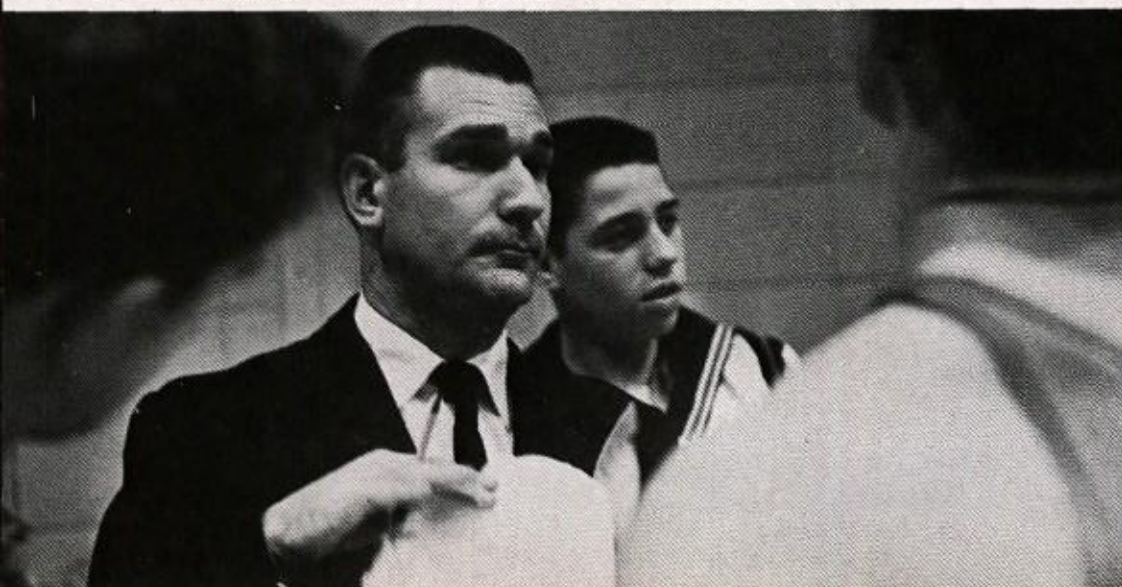

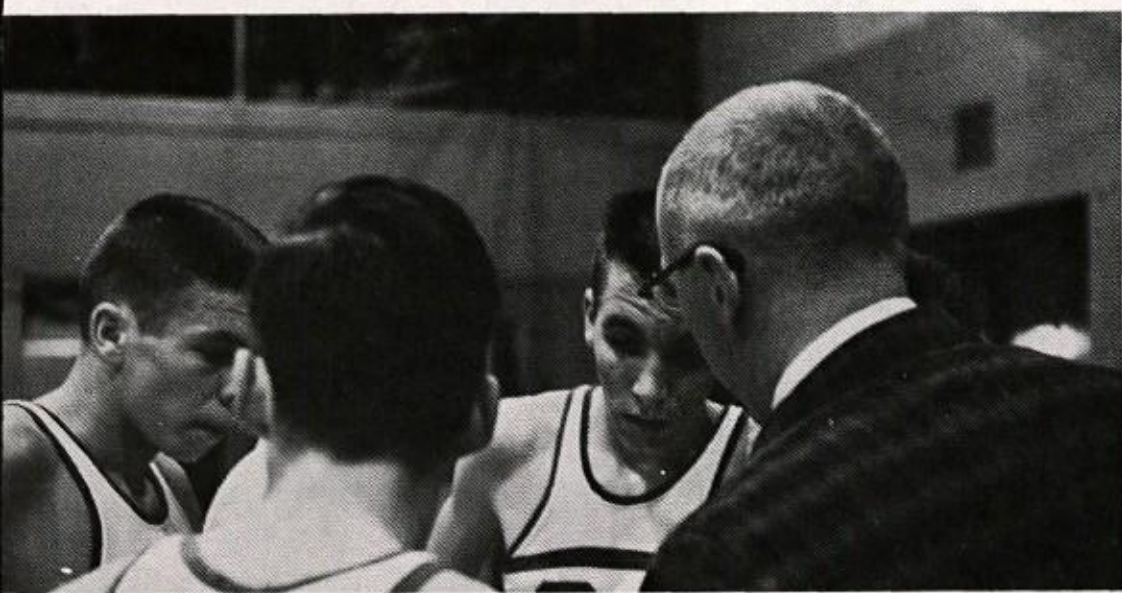

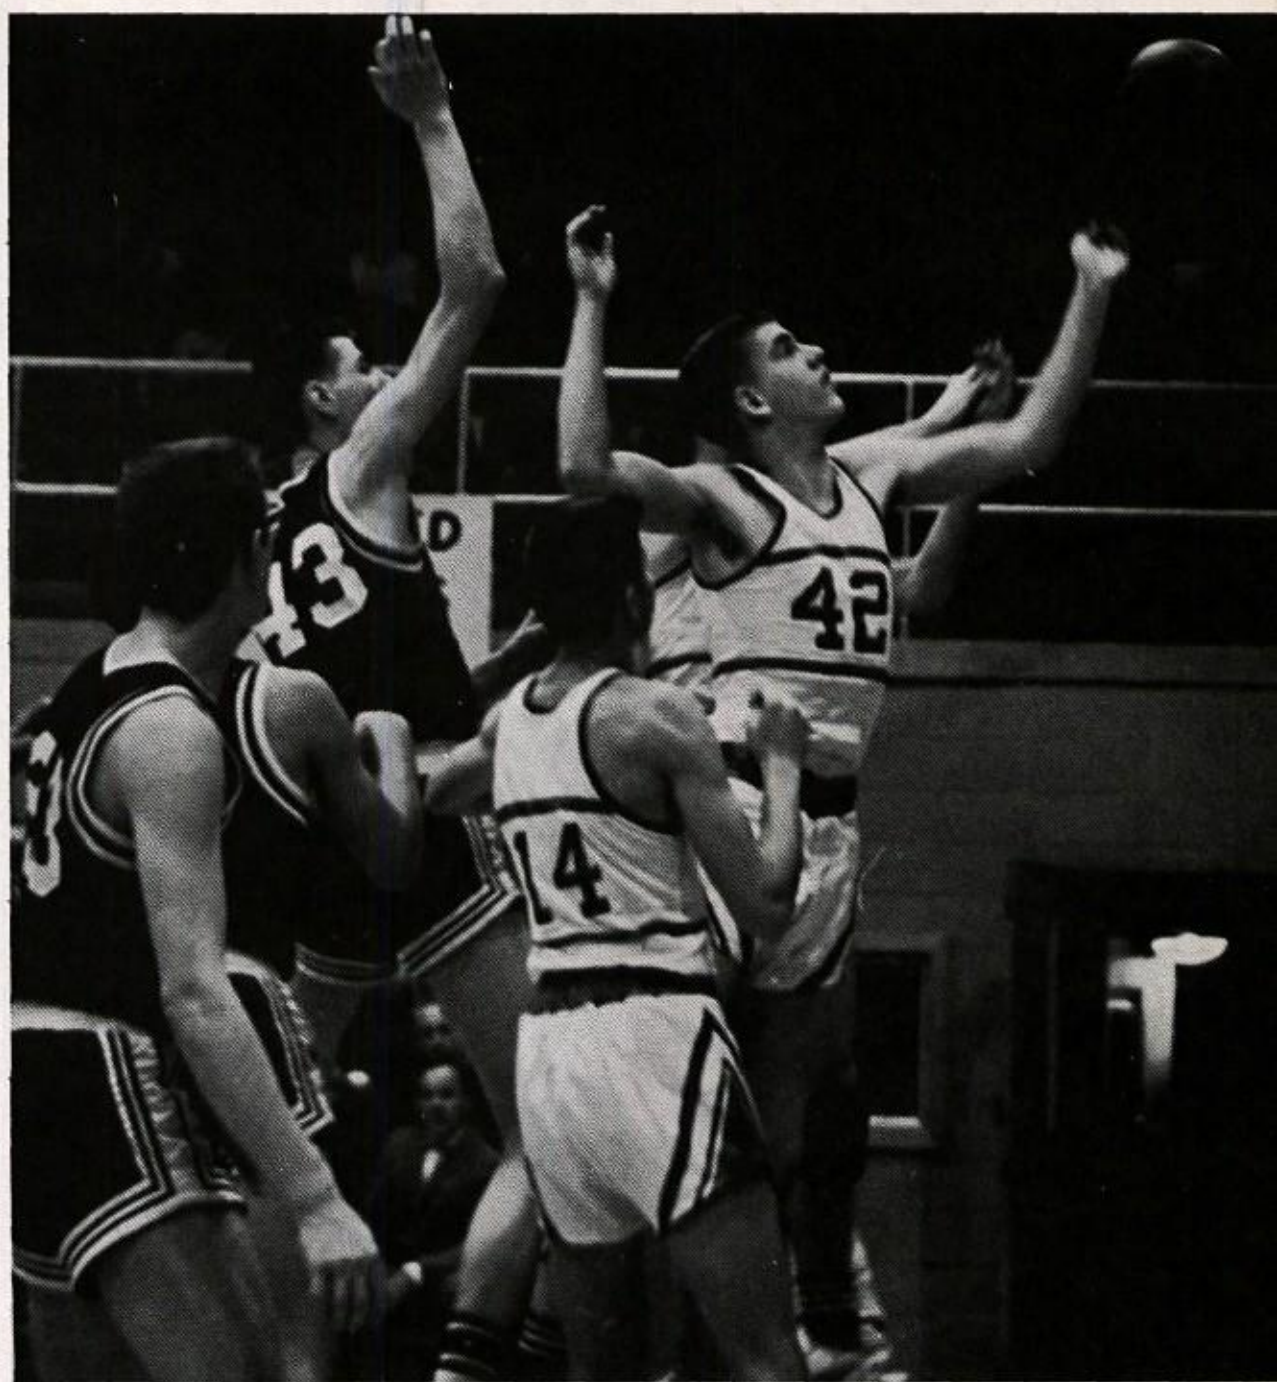

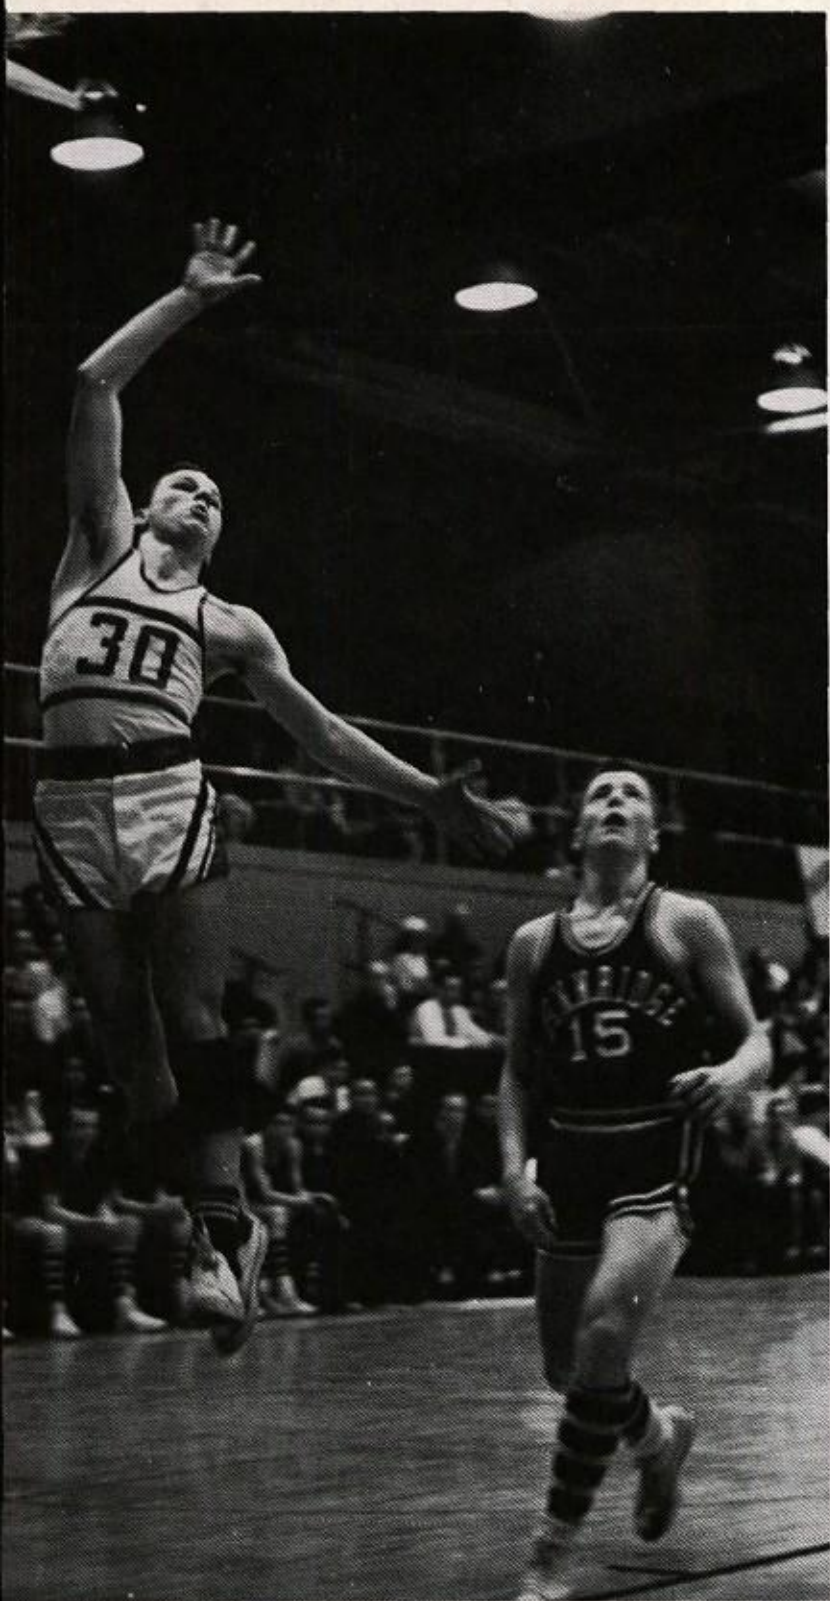

Sparked with varied skills and a glowing spirit, the team demonstrated the fundamentals of good coaching and fought to win. They excited the spectators and, in turn, the enthusiastic cheers encouraged the boys to do their best. This interaction of team and team support resulted in a successful season.

These seven of the more than 50 North Penn graduates are shown eating in the company cafeteria at West Point.

We join with the more than 50 graduates of North Penn High School who are members of the Merck Sharp & Dohme family in congratulating the Class of 1961.

Merck Sharp & Dohme is constantly seeking employees who possess the skills gained at schools such as North Penn. While some positions require technical knowledge, many others are non-technical in nature and can be filled by high school graduates.

We are looking forward to seeing some of the Class of 1961 in these positions.

Everybody Reads the ACCOLADE.

The mosaic is complete,
the pieces in place,
colors and shadings harmonize,
a picture is formed.

The artist carefully lays away his materials
until the cycle begins anew.

As proof of his labors
the mosaic remains.
